EUROPE AT WAR HEAT.

THE DISMEMBERNENT OF TURKEY NEAR AT HAND-PLOTTING FOR THE SPOILS-PAILURE ON THE PART OF THE STATESMEN TO SOLVE THE PROBLEM WILL BE THE SIGNAL

PARIS, Sept. 20 .- Europe is drifting warwards." The death of Lobanon Rostofsky may have broken some tiny wheels in the gigantic mechanism of European politics, but the repairs were quickly made and the work of combining, of plotting and counterplotting goes bravely on.

One fact settled beyond all doubt is the prospective dismemberment of Turkey, and the nineteenth century will have as its contribution to the history of the ages the wiping out of two nations—Poland and the Porte.

and without concessions to England.

And hence it is that today England,
the most liberal of the Christian pations of Europe, stands in the role of protector to the sultan of Turkey, Massecres go on apace. Gladstone thunders from his retreat for action, Amerles tollas in the gay for support And yet deris from his retreat for action. America joins in the cry for smoot. And yet Lord Salisbury looks in in dogged silence. He knows that his overtures to Russia for a joint occupation of Turkey have been met by an almost brutal refusal. He is aware that Germany, Austria and Italy, standing together diplomatically, favor Russia in the politics that are to end in the wrack of Turkey. He knows that France will Turkey. He knows that France will conacte all of Turkey to Russia in re-turn for ald in its prospective contest for the recapture of Alsace and Lorraine.

"COSSACK NEVER FORGETS."

It was England that cheated Russia of the truit of victory in 1877, and "the Cossack never forgets." After that war Great Britain was unwilling to see Russia get anything, while Germany was also extremely jealous of the growth of Russian source in southeastern Europe, and Austria was placed in deadly peril. So, after long negotiations, the conference of Berlin was called and met June 13, 1873, at which all the affairs of southeastern Europe was corphanial and residented and ail the affairs of southeastern Europe were overhauled and readjusted, and the czar was cheated out of his just reward. After a war lasting 322 days, the loss of over 100,000 men, the only territory gained by Russia was a slice of Armenta, Sorvin was made independent in name as well as in fact. Butgaria was erected into a principality tellutary to the suite and Europe ent in name as well as in fact. Bulgaria was erected into a principality tributary to the sultan, and Bossin was coolly handed over to Austria in payment for the emperor's compliance with the English demands of Phasia. The treaty satisfied nobody, for Austria wanted more Germany was not in a position to get anything, and Great Britain wanted to establish a protectorate over Syria, but only got Cyprus. The Balkan states and Greece demanded the whole of European Turkey and had to be snoken to very sharply before rellaquishing their demands, while even Italy, lealons of English supremacy in the Mediterranean, made a good deal of trouble before final pacification was effected. So it is that England stands today without friends in confinental Uarope, and while Russia, France and Germany have been building up navios to confront those of Great Britain, the latter has not been tile. Its warships are today equal to those of the three nations mentioned above put together, its estimates for 1896 alone allowing for the building of additions to its navy equal to the cuttre tonnage of Germany handy a warships. entire tonnage of Germany's warships.

EUROPE'S ARMED CAMPS. Yet the best evidence that Europe is n the verge of its greatest war lies in the armed camps that now fairly cover

Just how the Sick Man will be deposed is the question of the hour. The bone is in the center, and the nations are grouping about it, ready to jump on the one who jumps first. The plan outlined by Russia's statesmen seems now to be public property, and the presence of the czar to the nutions of the Drehund and to France compliasizes lis correctness. This is nothing more nor less than a combination of Continental Europe to bring about a division of Turkey without the intervention of and without concessions to England.

And hence it is that today England.

And hence it is that today England.

IN THE HANDS OF STATESMEN.

At present the situation is in the hands of Europe's statesmen. Soon it will be turned over to its generals, and both classes are developing a series of new and historical characters. Among the statesmen is the British ambassador to Russia, Sir Nicholas Basederick O'Connor. Sir Nicholas has deserved well of his country in several appointments since he first entered the diplomatic service. His earlier experiences were gained at political centers of such varied character as Berlin, The Hague, Madrid, Washington, Brazil and Paris. For two years he was secretary of the legation at Pekin, and held the same position in Washington. He was British agent and consul-general in Bulgaria during the eventful years succeeding Prince Ferdinand's accession to the throne in 1887. He was latter British minister to Pekin, and did good work during the recent Chinese-Japanese war.

Germany's ambassador to England,
Von Hatisfeldt-Wildenburg, is destined to be another of Europe's great states men. It is said of him that during a stay in Russia he completely won the confidence of Lobanoff-Restofsky, and that the recent diplomatic union between Russia and Germany was the work of his intollect.

Costaki Pasha is Turkey's ambassador to England, and is in constant communication with Lord Sallsbury.
England's master stroke was the appointment of its Russian subassador, Str Frank Cavendish Lascelles, to the Berlin embassy, giving the first evidence to Europe that it was thoroughby engapport with the Russian-German enter.

strapport with the Russian-German ententer.

Sir Edmund Monson, England's new representative in Prance, is another of the great men of the last decade of the century. In 1892 he was sent as ambassador to Vienna, and made a pricy councillor. As an arbitrator Eld Edmund has had some valuable experience, such as it may be said no ambassador nowadays should lack. This was when, in 1888, he acted as arbitrator under convention between the United States and Denmark on "The Butterfield Claim," a task which occupied his attention for the best part of a year.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a secret preparation. Any physician may have the formula on application. The secret of its success as a medicine lies in its extraordinary power to cleanse the blood of impurities and cure the most deep-seated cases of blood disease.
